Peter's Points

Peter Howard
The Star & Green'Un

IT is not a new topic, and it is bound to crop up time and again, yet this question of player-supporter relationship continues to fascinate me.

And in saying that Sheffield United haven't looked so "pressurised" away from home, compared with recent home matches, this is in no way intended as a reflection on Lane regulars.

It is true, and I'm sure close study of results will reveal this, that clubs fighting for a championship or promotion, or struggling to avoid relegation, find it harder to win at home than used to be the case.

After the West Ham United match—when not losing was a consolation to the Blades—they looked a different team at Crystal Palace the following match.

And, had they revealed in the first half the form and flair shown at Palace, I'm sure they would have returned from Goodison Park with something.

Because Everton did not look convincing. They seemed scared stiff of the Goodison fans reaction. Most of their players seemed to be looking over their shoulders, wondering about reaction if there was a mistake.

Now United are at home again, eager to please against Derby County this afternoon . . . and I hope the Blades are not looking over their shoulders!

It is difficult to know where the line lies between the supporter's traditional right to express annoyance, when he feels it, and the more positive desire to encourage his team.

Supporters need plenty to shout about

United need points, and are well aware of this very basic fact. I don't think they will go down, but, in common with everyone else, I'll be delighted when this, too, is a fact.

Obviously supporters don't want the team to go down, so perhaps now, more than ever, is the time for patience. Players are more likely to respond to encouragement, rather than abuse.

I agree it is a two-way affair. Supporters need plenty to shout about and pay good money in the hope they will get value.

Players need encouragement, as an artist needs applause or a painter needs recognition.

You can manage without it, of course. Some players—but from my experience they are few—can shut their ears to either pungent criticism or praise.

I think the vast majority of players welcome the full-throated backing of a crowd and find it more than an inspiration, and this goes for every team.

United face yet another stiff match this afternoon against Derby County.

I hope, at the finish, that Blades players and supporters are delighted with each other!

There's plenty of cause for optimism—ask Palace

IT IS an unfortunate fact of life that when luck is really needed, when players are desperately trying to turn the tide and when a team struggles manfully to fight back, fate can often be unkind. We deserved at least a share of the points at Goodison Park. In spite of the handicap of only having ten men our lads overcame Everton's use of the extra player and actually took control of the game for 20 minutes or so. The referee did not see a handling offence before Everton scored. Bill Dearden rattled the crossbar—two inches lower and the ball would have been in the net—and the rebound came fractionally too high for Jime Bone, scorer of our goal, to nod into the empty net.

Jim is fitting in well and, picking up the goals is justifying his transfer here. And to think that some of the wags among our supporters were saying that the club had bought an expensive Bone!

There is still optimism here because everyone knows their capabilities. It was a great win at Selhurst Park and the critics agreed that the margin did not flatter us. We had so much of the play the scoreline failed to reflect the extent of our superiority against a side which cost a great deal more than ours. It lifted our spirits as well as our position in the League. Much still has to be done, but we have the players and the ability to do it. What is more, we have some up-and-coming youngsters who can form the nucleus of our premier team in the future.

We have been proud of the way in which our juniors have met the challenge of the F.A. Youth Cup. It was by no means the easiest of games against Bristol City at Bramall Lane last week. Our youngsters conducted themselves well and, despite twice being a goal down, fought back to get on level terms and be able to earn a visit to Ashton Gate on Wednesday night with the position all square.

That, of course, is still the position following the second leg in which no goals were scored. The tie has to be replayed on a neutral ground. In spite of City wanting extra time there and then Mr. Harris was quite within his rights in insisting on another game and this was endorsed by the Chairman of the F.A. Youth Cup Committee, Mr. George Harbor. So we still have to wait to know who meets Ipswich in the final.

The signing from Crewe Alexandra of 20-year-old Terry Nicholl is regarded as an investment for the future. It is known that several other clubs had been watching him. We stepped in and feel we have made a good move.

Like his brother, Chris., with Aston Villa, Terry entered football later than many players. They were not apprentices to the game but showed potential a few years behind some others. Ability will come to the fore and sometimes it helps when there is some maturity with it.

Newspaper reports that our new ground development plans include the provision of a moat, as do South American stadiums, may have caused some surprise. Let us reassure you at once. It is not to prevent you, our fans, from getting at the players. It is merely to have a ground which will meet European football. That is something in which we hope to participate at some time in the future. When the pitch is moved there will be ample room for the dry moat around the playing area. Spectators will have the same view as at present.

This is much better than having wire netting which restricts the view from the terraces, though this is to be seen on many grounds in Europe. While we are about it, we want to see that Bramall Lane is brought up to the specifications required.

Though we have met today's visitors, Derby County, a total of 71 times in the League since 1893, in only five seasons have we clashed in Division Two. Since our return to the First Division we have lost all three matches played and conceded nine goals to only one scored by us. We have won 29 of the League encounters and County 30.

A history of Sheffield United's league performances

BELOW we print two more results panels which trace Sheffield United's performances in the Football League—this time for seasons 1936-37 and 1937-38.

By the side of the season at the top of each panel is given the number of seasons United had spent in the League at that time. The figure in brackets after the Division is the number of seasons in that grade. The club's final position is also shown above the panels and the brackets alongside the opponents indicate the position in which that club finished the season.

Lane Personality: TERRY NICHOLL

TERRY is another rugby player whose first love was soccer. When 14 or 15 he had half a season playing for Stockport Boys but his Grammar School did not like the clash with the rugby he played there, so he had to give up his soccer. Fortunately, this was only temporary. Originally, he played with his Primary School as a forward, but at the Grammar School he was rugby scrum-half.

He got three "O" levels and was studying for his O.N.C. in mechanical engineering at Technical School and that is something he hopes to continue in Sheffield. Terry went for a trial with Crewe from local football and for a season was in the reserve side, then joined the ground staff. When he made his League debut he was still an amateur.

"I played up front as a striker, though I usually was in midfield. I don't mind which role it is", he said. "I have found the game much different here from Crewe. I have about fifty Fourth Division games behind me. But I was surprised at the standard of play, even in the Central League. It seems that bit quicker and the players are sharp. Of course, there are First Division players all around me, often on both sides, and it must bring me on. It was a surprise, coming to Bramall Lane. I had a telegram to contact manager Jimmy Melia and I came to Sheffield next day. It was sudden. But I'm settling in OK. I feel there is a future for me here. I owe Crewe a lot and, though they were 92nd in the Football League, right on the bottom, I wouldn't swap that experience."

Terry comes from a sporting family. His brother is Chris. Nicholl, of Aston Villa; one sister, Pat, aged 22, is a P.E. instructor at a Nottinghamshire Comprehensive School and the other, Elizabeth, aged 16, likes to watch him play. He helps run a lads' football team at Wilmslow on Sundays and enjoys most sports as well as collecting records, mostly progressive music.

The champions keep hitting the headlines

THERE are not many days when Derby County are out of the news headlines. Just before the present season began the Football League confirmed that a £5,000 fine had been inflicted on the club following an inquiry by a Commission into the circumstances of Ian Moore's apparent transfer from Nottingham Forest a year ago. Since then have come reports that manager Brian Clough was preparing to leave, that he and assistant manager Peter Taylor had signed a new five-year contract, that County made a profit of more than £27,000 last season, excluding £60,000 from Promotions, and the creating of a British record transfer fee last August when David Nish came from Leicester City for £225,000.

The newspaper stories about the League Champions never seem to cease. And, of course, it can hardly be said that Mr. Clough himself is not publicity-minded. What he has achieved in five years is remarkable. When he arrived at the Baseball Ground, County were an ordinary club toiling at the task of getting out of Division Two. Not only did they top the League last season, but their second string also won the Central League, an indication that plenty of talent is there waiting to be tapped.

Recently, there has been some criticism that Derby have put their European Cup commitments before League games. But there is no doubt this is now an outfit always to be treated with respect. Like others, they have found that everyone else takes delight to trying to beat the Champions.

Last August Mr. Clough told the national Press, "I don't always know if I'm right. But I think I am. So don't knock me for saying it". He has been proved right on so many occasions. And he's honest. He said County had only 12 or 13 players up to the level required to win the League title and that they were lucky to avoid injury problems.

Players have left. On 22nd December last, 22-year-old England Under-23 international full-back John Robson, who played 41 times during the Championship-winning campaign, went to Aston Villa for a reported £90,000 fee. Reserve striker Barry Butlin was transferred to Luton for around £50,000 at the end of November.

Still scoring goals are Roy McFarland and Alan Hinton. McFarland got two of three when they beat Manchester United. Hinton, who scored the other, got one of the two which beat West Brom., from the penalty spot. McFarland is regarded as one of Mr. Clough's biggest bargain buys. He cost a mere £24,000 when he came from Tranmere Rovers in August, 1967. He became the County's skipper and England's centre-half.

Last year, Leeds-born Kevin Hector became one of the select band of footballers who have scored 200 goals in the Football League. He got 113 of them while playing with Bradford, from where he came in 1966. A former player who also held the distinction of scoring a double-century of goals is his manager, Mr. Clough.

Sharing the scoring against Crystal Palace was Steve Powell who, at the age of 16, was plunged into Derby's important game with Liverpool on 1st May last year. He had just one other League outing in midfield the previous October. Son of former County winger Tony Powell, he is a former England Schoolboys' captain. Recently, however, the limelight has fallen on Roger Davies, picked up for £14,000 from non-Leaguers Worcester City, who has been scoring prolifically.

In 1969 County, fresh from the Second Division, qualified for a place in Europe by finishing fourth in Division One. But a Football League Commission into administrative irregularities barred them from playing abroad for a year. Few will blame them for wanting to make their presence felt this time, particularly when they have eyes on a return to Europe and are smarting over their dismissal from the F.A. Cup by Leeds United last week.
